Ethan Zohn

For Ethan Zohn, winning CBS's Survivor: Africa was the springboard to an exceptional young life of entrepreneurship, social purpose and advocacy. It was also the prelude to an incredible story, one of perseverance, accomplishment, and enduring spirit in the face of once unthinkable challenges. By sharing that story, Ethan inspires countless others around the globe. His message for young people, academia and the corporate community alike emphasizes character, resiliency, service, kindness and turning challenges into strengths.

As a fit, active, 35-year-old former professional soccer player who had traveled the world on behalf of the international health community through his foundation, Grassroot Soccer, Ethan became an unlikely face of cancer. Diagnosed not once but twice with CD20+ Hodgkin's Lymphoma in the span of several years, Ethan endured years of aggressive treatment, including two stem cell transplants. Never losing optimism, spirit, or humor despite extraordinary rigors and setbacks, Ethan used his journey and considerable platform to connect with others and offer much-needed inspiration, advice, and comfort.

Inspired by the incredibly popular REALITY TV show, SURVIVAL FIJI blends the challenge and adventure of competitive gameplay with Nanuku Resort Fiji's stunning and luxurious island style.

Created and led by Ethan Zohn, join this Season 3 winner and the ultimate survivor in Fiji, the South Pacific's most diverse and captivating island.
